WHALES IN OFFING.

Tell of Presence of Herring at Bay of Islands.

Atlantic Fisheries Co. Making Great Preparations for Season.

News from the Bay of Islands, N. F., regarding the herring fishery is as varied as can be imagined.

The Times is in receipt of a letter today, dated at Curling on Friday which says:

"The fall and winter herring fishing season is now bordering on us. The prospects for a favorable fishery are as bright or brighter than for many years, at corresponding dates.

Some herrings have been netted at several points in the Bay of Islands, but no one has commenced the fishing in earnest yet.

"Large schools of whales have been seen in the offing of Bay of Islands the past two weeks or so, and this is considered one of the best indications of the presence of herring.

"Neither American vessel has arrived here yet. It is said that a large Canadian fleet will visit the coast this fall. The Atlantic Fisheries Co. are making greater preparations for the herring fishery this season than on any previous year.

"The fishery will be prosecuted on similar lines to that of last year."

New Species of Fish in Eastport Waters.

The Eastport Citizen says: "About a week ago a new kind of fish was found in the weirs. The body is like mackerel, to which is hitched a smelt-like head and herring tail. Experts claim them to be plichard, found in large quantities off the coast of Great Britain, and canned in France as the real French sardine. They are of delicious flavor. The law of compensation may be worked out for us by the incoming of this species of the herring tribe. May these prove to be not mere stragglers, but the skirmishing line of advancing hosts our way."

REAL TRUE FISH STORY.

Vessels Land Over 3,000,000 Lbs. Since Monday Morning.

T WHARF IS FAIRLY GLUTTED.

Many Fine Fares Both at This Port and at Boston.

Boston is up against the biggest fish glut of the season today, and there is not sufficient room at T wharf for all the vessels. Some are out in the stream, others at East Boston, others at Long wharf and other handy places, and still they come.

When the bell rung to commence business yesterday morning, 31 vessels were there with fresh fish fares. Others kept stringing in during the day in a steady stream and continued during the night, and this morning found the place crowded worse than ever before with vessels and fish.

Up to 8 o'clock, the arrivals since Sunday numbered 78 sail and many more are expected today.

At this port up to 8 o'clock this morning, there had also been 31 fishing arrivals, exclusive of the herring fleet with its 1000 barrels of fresh goods, so that the Boston and Gloucester arrivals, since Sunday up to 8 o'clock this morning totalled 109, which is certainly a record breaker for quite a while.

At Boston, it was more than even the fine Monday and Tuesday market could stand and prices slumped rapidly. Hake went begging at any figure and this morning off shore cod found no market, while off shore haddock brought $1.50 per hundred weight. The vessels with any amount of hake in their fares are expected to come to this port to split and some whole fares, where the crafts could not get near the dock to get any kind of a berth, are also looked for down here today.

Many of the off shore vessels at Boston have big fares, those with 50,000 pounds and over being steamer Spray, 76,000, sch. Arabia, 50,000, sch. Regina, 93,000, sch. John J. Fallon, 65,000, sch.
